Of Interest and Usury.

Some twenty or more years ago-pending certain movements in the Legislature of New York upon the subject of Usuryone John Whipple, a pretty smart lawyer, of Providence, in the State of Rhode Island, was employed by parties interested to write a pamphlet in favor of laws to prescribe the rates of interest upon contracts for the payment of money. He was probably well paid for the job; and, being designed for that purpose, the work received a large circulation. It has been several times reprinted, and from that day to this has been the leading text-book and authority of the advocates of Usury Laws. As it was a lawyer's job, it was performed in a lawyer-like manner: the author having in view the effect of the argument. not the amount of truth to be contained either in its premises or its conclusions. It is hold in its assumptions and smooth and plausible in its deductions; and, it is not to be wondered at, that, in the great denrth of earnest thinking upon matters of public economy, it was received at the time as almost the end of controversy. At this day, one can scarcely take up a book, or pamphlet, or magazine article, or legislative report, of which interest upon money is the subject, that he does not find the notions of Mr. WHIPPLE, either cited as unanswerable, or condemned as untenable. The real force of the work, horvever, is in its audacity: the author was no statesman nor political economist; buit a literary man, and an advocate. He eh ose Mr. Bentham (hisbook upon Usury) as his antagonist, sat him up, discharged agni nst him all the real or factitious ammanition he could command, and pronounced him destroyed-which was probabl'y a mistake. But with Mr. WHIPPLE. or his theories, at this time, we do not contend-choosing to present the subject of Interest, or Usury, in a different aspect. Under the Mosaic polity, interest or ust my - the original meaning of both words being the same-was only collectible of a stranger-that is to say, a hewathen. The Jew compensated himself for lending money gratis to his countryma u, by taking cent per cent from the Gen tile. We have no means to know which style of investment he was wont to prefer. It is said to have been the maxim of the early Christian (Roman) Church. the t loans of money should be gratuitous. Persons, however, lending money for commercial purposes, might take a share of the profits in consideration of assuming a share of the risk-the transaction being, to that extent, a partnership. Such is the doi:trine laid down by St. Thomas Aout-NAS six centuries ago. The moneyed ms n whose wealth was dormant in his coffers, was forbidden to demand a premium for its use, under a penalty of privition of the sacraments of the Church and of Christian burial. Out of these sources have sprung the usury laws and notions of modern times. interest, is, that while they do not become practical rules for the transaction of business, they give legal establishment and countenance to the doctrine that interest is due as a part of every obligation to pay. To say that no man shall pay more than so much interest, is equivalent to the declaration that there is a foundation in right to demand and receive from him just so much - which remains to be proved. Because A owes B to-day one hundred dollars, it does not follow that one year from to-day A should, as a matter of simple justice, pay B one hundred and twenty, or one hundred and ten, or even one hundred and one dollars. If A has promised to do so, that is another thing: he is bound by the terms of his contract; but if he has not promised, who has the right to say that it is one of the rules of eternal justice that he should perform?

There is more in this view of the case than may at first sight appear. There are thousands of hardships growing out of the idea that interest-whether stipulated or not-is a part of every obligation to pay. It has entered into the business ethics of the world, and a thrifty man would look upon it as much out of rule to remit his interest as to remit his principal: and in this way-their consciences entirely set at rest by a custom created and sanctioned by the law-hundreds of well-meaning men become oppressors doing that which, had they been left free to their own views of right, they would not have done. Like the most of legal intermeddling in economical affairs, Usury Laws have, as their principal and only invariable effect, done the very thing they were professedly designed to prohibit and

In these times, there will be interest demanded and paid; and it is right there should be. But it does not by any means M'lle Poinsot are, each of them, artists of the follow that it should be universal. If a highest order in their peculiar roles. The pro-

not, let not the law come in and say, You must pay thus and thus, not because you promised to do so, but because you promised to do something else. Society needs to rid itself of the idea of penalty inseparable from non-payment-practically the worst relic of the Mosaic dispensation now adhering to our economical system. It is this erroneous idea, of the natural right of money to demand rent for its use-embalmed equally in interest laws and in usury laws-which produces the strong and unfortunate tendency, so perceptible in these times, to separate the capitalist from the practical man of business-elevating the former to the condition of a master, and reducing the latter to that of a dependant-when their true relation should be that of partners, mutually beneficial to each other. To elucidate all the evils which spring from this state of things, would require a volume.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE OPERA. -The greatest creation in opera, Don Giaranni, was presented, for the second time, last evening, to a splendid house, for the benefit of M'lls Colson. The melody is rich, and the instrumentation admirable. As on the evening previous, the opera was a grand triumph, the east being completely perfect and the rendition fine. M'lle Parodi, in the arduous role of "Donna Anna," sang artistically. M'lle Colson's "Zerlini" was charming. The "Elvira" of M'lle Strakosch was also very cred itable. Barili, Brignoli, Junea and Amodlo, were fine, particularly the latter, in his mirthful role of "Masetto." The ballet was a pleasing feature, and gave much satisfaction. This evening is set apart for the benefit of Signor Amodio, when Verdi's celebrated opera, Il Trovatore, will be presented, with a full cast. To-morrow night benefit of M'lle Wilhorst, when La Figlia del Regimento will be produced. There will be no opera Friday night. On Saturday evening the great opera of Robert Le Diable will be given, with a powerful cast.

NATIONAL THEATER .- Extremes Meet, or Men of the Doy, was produced last night at the National for the second time, but not to a very large audience. The piece possesses decided merit, is admirably written, and, as the advertisement runs, is "replete with brilliant and poetic language." The personation of "Lucy Vavasour," by Mrs. Sinclair, was finished and refined. Mr. Sedley, as "Frank Hawthorne," was excellent, and rendered his part in an effective and happy manner. In fact, every part was admirably performed, and the play was put upon the stage in a manner that reflects credit upon the management. We have not space to enter into the merits of the play, but suffice it to say to the play-going community that it is full of interest, and deserving of crowded houses as long as it remains upon tho boards.

MR. CARL FORMES .- We confess to considerable surprise on seeing, yesterday, in the Gazette, a card signed by Messrs. Satter, Thomas and Anschutz, accounting for their non-appearance at the Concert on Monday evening, and reflecting in rather harsh terms upon Mr. Formes. Feeling an interest in Mr. Formes, whom we believe to be a gentleman in the true sense of the word, we were led to make inquiries, the result of which, we think, will show that not they "who are first in their own cause" have always justice on their side. It seems that, during some altercation not explained, Satter conducted himself in an insulting manner toward two ladies, who are not only of high standing as artists, but, we believe, are irreproachable in conduct. He even went so far as to employ a vile epithet to designate them, which Mr. Formes no sooner heard than he called on Satter to retract it forthwith. Satter not only refused to retract, but repeated the disgusting epithet, whereupon Mr. Formes instantly slapped him on the face-an act which every man in America would be "guilty" of perpetrating in similar circumstances. Thomas and Anschutz now sided with Satter, and actually refused to fulfill their part of the programme of Monday night's Concert, for which they were under engagement. They packed up and departed, after leaving their card for insertion in the Gazette. We understand that it is the wish of Carl Formes to visit us again in May, but the gratification of this wish will altogether depend upon circumstances.

MR. LEVI CHASE, who was so brutally as saulted, a few evenings since, by a man named William Gibbons, called on us yesterday to correct the assertion that the assault occurred in a doggery. He states that he was walking peaceably along the street, when he was met by Gibbons. He showed us quite a number of documents certifying to his good character. etc.; also a letter of recommendation from the elders of the Church of God, at Raisin, Michigan, certifying that he is a member in good standing, and a minister of the Gospel. We make this statement at the request of Mr. Chase, who deeply regrets that his name ap peared in print in connection with a doggery.

Clacinaat, February 15, 1859.

About a month ago I called at Dr. Aver's "Throat and Jang Institute," 50 West Fourth street, for treatment for Fonsilitis and Chronic Inflammation of the Throat. The tonsils and uvula (or palato) were so much enlarged that there seemed to be butone course to much enlarged that there seemed to be butone course to represe, and that was to cut them off, this I had been told by other physicians, who had also candidly told me they, could not cure me. Dr. Aver made a careful examination and pronounced excision unnecessary, and prescribed Medicated Inhiation and topical applications, with general frestment, and the result is a resurror returned. The inflammation has been allayed, and the tonsils and palate reduced to their natural size and position. Lnow have 80 sorreshes or difficulty whatever of the throat, and Fell That I am Now FERFERTLY WELL.

Teordially commend Dr. Averas a skillful and competent physician in his speciality, and worthy of all confidence. His mode of treatment is rational, pleasant, and certainly in my case successful, and I have every reason to believe the Doctor is equally successful in all other cases while I have been under treatment at the Institute.
